A little retail therapy can go a long way. Why not indulge in it mere steps from your front door? High-end shops, restaurants and entertainment have always been crucial selling points in high-end real estate, but with fierce competition, they matter more than ever. We found five incredible buildings in three cities that set residents right in the heart of some world-class shopping.

Although this 57-story condo tower isn't positioned directly inside in a shopping center, its proximity to the Design District and Wynwood make it a prime candidate to add to the list. (And the building itself looks like a boutique storefront on its own.) When it's completed in 2019, residents at any of the 100 units can spend the day shopping in either neighborhood, then return to the building to unwind in a private spa, full bar, or the game room. Residences range from three- to five bedrooms. Reservations are being taken now starting at $1.5 million.
